

Introduction to the Phase Rule and Phase Diagrams

I use this exercise to introduce students to the phase rule and phase diagrams. It is a homework assignment, and they do it before I have done any lecturing on the topics. They can teach themselves.

After they do the assignment, we go over it in class. First they compare answers with other students. Then, if needed, I lecture on things that have caused confusion or go through some of the questions.