

Information Literacy Activity

Imagine yourself as a student in a first-year undergraduate course entitled Hispanics in the U.S. You are being asked to prepare a brief 3-5 minute presentation about the following video(s) for class tomorrow. The presentation must illuminate something about this culture that challenged your way of thinking, seeing, or feeling.

What in this video are you curious about?

To make meaning of the video, what information do you need to know?

Where are you going to begin looking for information?

Reflection:

- 1) What did it feel like to be a first-year student presented with an unfamiliar text?
- 2) What possible interventions do you feel would make this a more approachable assignment for students?
- 3) How might an assignment like this be embedded in a course to make it a worthwhile cultural literacy activity?
