

EXPERIMENTAL ECONOMICS (ECO 430)

You are invited to participate in one or more economics experiments that will be conducted in the next several weeks at the Koury Business Center under the supervision of Associate Professor Greg Lilly, Department of Economics.

The experiments involve economic decision-making situations, and if you participate, you will receive two benefits:

(1) EXTRA-CREDIT POINTS

Your Instructor has agreed to let you earn extra-credit points. Right now we cannot say exactly how much you will earn. Your extra-credit points will be determined by your Instructor's decision with respect to grades, and how well you do in your economic decision-making. For example, perhaps your Instructor is willing to give a maximum of 10 points toward assignment A, and a minimum of 5 points toward assignment A. Your performance in the experiment determines which number in the range: 5 to 10 becomes your extra-credit points.

Your instructor will inform you of the maximum, the minimum, and the relevant grade assignment.

(2) FREE PIZZA

To show our gratitude we will supply free pizza during the experiments.

We plan to hold two experiment sessions: Tuesday, April 17, 4PM - 5:30PM, and Thursday, April 19, 6:30PM – 8:00PM. Both sessions will take place in the Koury Business Center. If you would like to participate, place your name, phone number, and e-mail address on our sign-up sheet. If you have a preference for one of the days (either the 17th or the 19th), let us know.

We truly appreciate your help!
