

The Houston Lutheran Stone Church

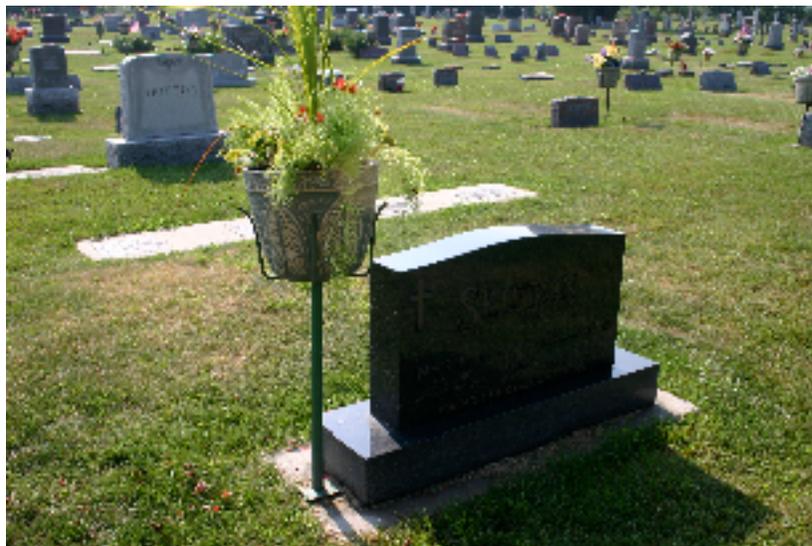

Houston, Minnesota

Seen here is the church with the cemetery in the background. The sign below describes the establishment of the congregation.

Recently placed monuments in excellent condition and a variety of rock types appear in close proximity to old monuments in various states of weathering.

These photos show two monuments placed in the later 1800s. The monuments are of different stone types and conditions.

Monuments similar to this can be observed in each of our local cemeteries.
